FALL ACTIVITY GUIDE

CLARK COUNTY, OHIO

YOUR BACKYARD IS BIGGER THAN YOU THINK

Parks connect us.

National Trail Park District provides Clark County residents with places to play, learn, stay active, and connect. Across our 35 parks and facilities, we offer events, family activities, nature and history programs, camps, aquatics, trails, fitness programs, and sports including tennis, pickleball, softball, soccer, basketball, and volleyball. This fall, you will find activities for every age.

Whether you visit a playground, walk a trail, attend a program, or simply enjoy a park, these experiences support physical and mental health, reduce stress, bring people together, and strengthen community pride. Parks also support property values and help make Clark County a place where people want to live, work, and raise a family.

As a public agency, we must use our resources wisely. Rising staffing, maintenance, operating, and programming costs continue to create financial challenges. Remaining financially stable while protecting the parks, facilities, trails, and programs residents value requires careful and sometimes difficult decisions. We continue to improve efficiency, build partnerships, seek additional funding, and invest responsibly in our park system. Some services may change, but our commitment to Clark County has not. We remain focused on caring for our parks, providing meaningful recreation opportunities, and using limited resources where they can have the greatest impact.

Thousands of people visit our parks and facilities each month, showing the value recreation and conservation bring to our community.

As fall returns, I encourage you to explore your local parks and the programs in this guide. Whether you want to try something new, spend time with family, stay active, enjoy nature, or relax, we hope you find something that inspires you.

Thank you for supporting National Trail Park District and helping make Clark County great place to live, work, and play.

Leann Castillo, Executive Director

FALL, REVEALED

THE SECRET BEHIND CHANGING LEAVES.

Have you ever wondered why the trees seem to change their outfits every fall? During spring and summer, leaves are filled with a green pigment called chlorophyll. Chlorophyll helps leaves use sunlight to make food for the tree. As the days get shorter and cooler, trees start getting ready for winter. They stop making as much chlorophyll, and the green color begins to fade. That's when the hidden colors come out to play! Yellow and orange pigments have been hiding in the leaves all along. When the green fades away, we finally get to see them. Some trees also create special red and purple pigments as fall arrives, giving us those gorgeous autumn reds. In other words, the trees aren't changing colors; they're revealing colors that were there all along!

BECOME A FALL EXPLORER

Cooler temperatures, crisp air and colorful leaves make it the perfect time to explore our parks and trails. Grab the kids, grandkids, a friend or your walking shoes and head outside for a fall adventure. Don't forget to look up and see how many of these you can find:

Color Hunt: Find a red, orange, yellow, green, and brown leaf.

Biggest Leaf: Who can find the biggest one?

Leaf Match: Find two different leaves. Can you tell which trees they came from?

Listen Up: Stop for one minute. How many sounds can you hear?

Wildlife Watch: Look for birds, squirrels, and other animals preparing for colder weather.

Crunch Test: Find the crunchiest leaf!

Family Photo: Pick your favorite fall backdrop, snap a photo and tag us on social media.

who killed DANIEL HERTZLER

More than 150 years later, the death of Daniel Hertzler remains one of Clark County's oldest mysteries.

Daniel Hertzler was a farmer and local businessman. He established what is believed to be Clark County's oldest private bank and owned mills along the Mad River. In 1854, Daniel and his wife, Catherine, built a large Pennsylvania Bank-style house in Bethel Township, about five miles west of Springfield. On October 10, 1867, their home became the scene of a crime that remains unsolved today.

A NOISE IN THE NIGHT

Daniel and Catherine were asleep on the second floor of their home. They usually slept on the third floor, but their sick grandchild was staying with them. The home's only stove was on the second floor, where it was warmer. Around 2 a.m., Catherine got up to give the child medicine. She then lay back down. Soon after, she heard a strange noise. Daniel was snoring loudly when Catherine woke him, and he went to see what was happening. An intruder then grabbed Catherine by the throat. She called out to her grandson, but the man warned the boy to stay quiet. A gunshot came from the northwest room, where Daniel Hertzler had gone with his rifle. The intruder released Catherine and ran toward the sound. Catherine and her grandson walked more than a mile to the home of a neighbor, Mr. Stillwell, for help.

A TERRIBLE DISCOVERY

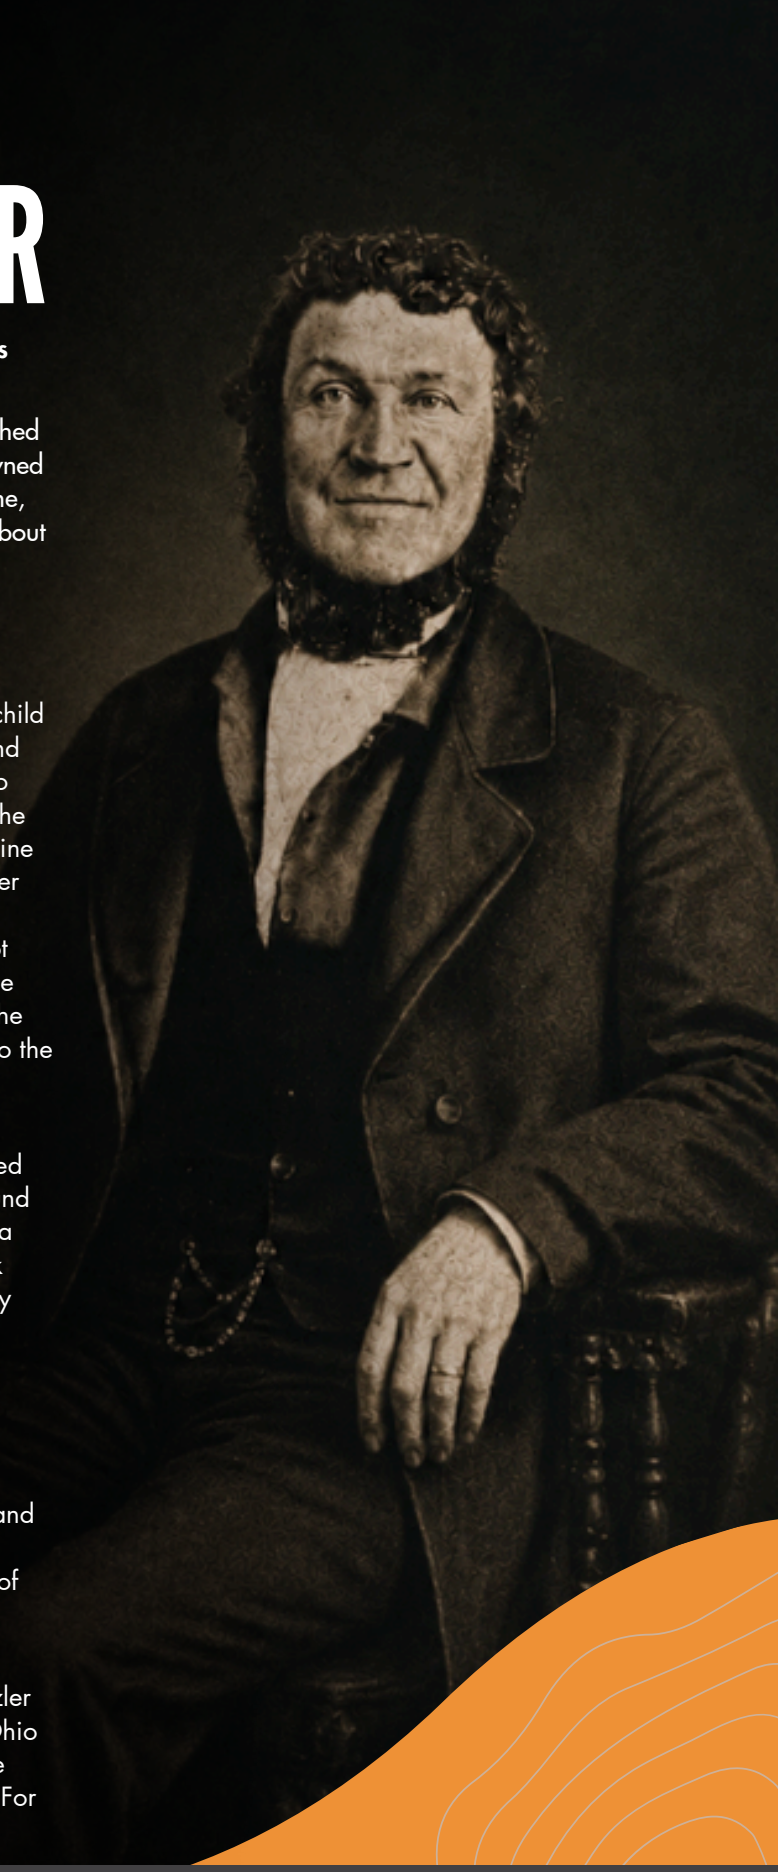

Several neighbors went to the Hertzler home, but no one entered until Daniel's son-in-law, Henry Snyder, arrived. Daniel was found in the center of the room with his rifle nearby. There had been a violent struggle, and Daniel had been killed. The attackers took Daniel's horse and buggy and headed toward Springfield. They did not take any money.

THE SEARCH FOR SUSPECTS

Four men were arrested in connection with the crime: Henry C. Roberts, Charles Scott, Joseph Warren and Daniel's son-in-law, Harvey Pope. The men were held in the old Clark County Jail. During an escape in April 1868, Roberts and Scott got away and were never found. Pope did not try to escape. He and Warren were later cleared of the crime. No one was ever found guilty of killing Daniel Hertzler.

A MYSTERY THAT REMAINS

Catherine later moved to Springfield. Over the years, the Hertzler House passed through several owners, including the State of Ohio and the City of Springfield. Today, the Park District owns it. The house is located at the entrance of George Rogers Clark Park. For upcoming tour information, visit page 14.

WILD WAYS TO WINTER

SEE HOW OHIO'S WILDLIFE GETS READY FOR COLD WEATHER.

When the air turns cold and leaves begin to fall, Ohio's animals know winter is coming. Some fly south. Others sleep, store food, or grow thicker coats.

HEADING SOUTH

Many birds fly to warmer places where food is easier to find. Geese, warblers, swallows, and ducks may travel hundreds or even thousands of miles.

Monarch butterflies also make a long trip south to Mexico. During a fall walk, look for birds gathering in large groups before their journey.

SLEEPING THROUGH THE COLD

Groundhogs, bats, and some small animals spend much of winter in a deep sleep. Their bodies slow down, helping them save energy when food is hard to find.

Not every animal sleeps through winter. Squirrels, rabbits, deer, foxes, and many birds stay active during the cold months.

GROWING A WINTER COAT

Many animals grow thicker fur or feathers to stay warm. This winter coat traps warm air close to the body. Deer and other animals may also rest in wooded or sheltered areas during cold weather.

Squirrels prepare by gathering and hiding nuts. Those acorns become important meals when winter arrives.

You do not have to travel far to see wildlife getting prepared for winter. Visit one of our many parks and watch for migrating birds, busy squirrels, and animals growing their winter coats.
